BRITISH ENGLISH vs AMERICAN ENGLISH

It's difficult to make clear distinctions between US and UK accents when there is such a wide variety of accents within both the US and UK. A Texan and a New Yorker are both Americans, but have very different accents. The same goes for British accents in London, Manchester and Glasgow. However, some very general distinctions can be made. Americans usually pronounce every "r" in a word, while the British tend to only pronounce the "r" when it's the first letter of a word.

some prepositional differences are not as pronounced as they once were..

Grammar: prepositions.

The differences below are only a general rule. American speech has influenced Britain via pop culture, and vice versa. Therefore,

NEWS: THIS & THAT ...

Long time ago, in February a caterpillar wanted to find a true love. Suddenly, on Valentine's Day a cupid came to him and advised him how to fall in love. He told him that girls like roses, gifts and sweets. The next day the caterpillar met a ladybug. His heart started to beat faster, he realised that he should have a date with her. He listened to the cupid and went to the shop to buy a bunch of red roses. He gave her all the presents and invited her to spend some time together. Two days later they went to the restaurant. At dusk, in the shine of the moon they hugged and kissed. From that day they were in love and they lived happily ever after.

Written by class VII a.

A long, long time ago lived a stubborn and long caterpillar. her name was Collinella. Her life was peaceful and calm but it was one thing which drove her crazy - it was Valentine's day. Every February is full of gifts, sweets, red roses and secret admirers. Moreover, there are lots of Valentine cards and awful red colour everywhere. Too much love! But there was one happy fact - the fifteenth of February - the day of singles. Why did Collinella hate Valentine's so much? Few years earlier she fell in unrequited love. On Valentine's Day she felt bad all day while everyone was happy, hugging and kissing. Collinella didn't believe in true love so every time she saw a couple she was sad. While walking down the street she fell over and hit her head on the pavement where another caterpillar was resting. It was love at first sight. Few years later they got married and lived happily ever after.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY !!!

Not all of us like Valentine's. Yet every day we wake up with love in our hearts for those around us. We just don't often get a chance to show it. So from our dearest best friends to our ever-devoted dogs, let's turn this day into what it's meant to be about - and give a little love to all those we love... . This year we decided to prepare heart caterpillars so as to show how much we like each other .... while working in a team. We organised a competition for the longest caterpillar, with the most number of hearts. Moreover we took into consideration the appearance of each caterpillar as well as the presentation in English, of course.

FAMOUS LANDMARKS - NEW ZEALAND

Sky Tower

This can be found in Auckland, stands 1,076 feet high and the tallest building in New Zealand. Here you can do a lot of things like take a walk around the Sky-Walk at 629 feet or take a glass elevator to one of the three viewing platforms, book a table at Orbit; a revolving restaurant. You can also try bungee jumping off their 629 foot pergola.

One Tree Hill

This is one of the tallest volcanic peaks in the city of Auckland. Known as the This Māungakiekie, it is also a sacred memorial ground for the Maori settlers. It used to have a single totara tree at the top but in the late 1800's it was replaced by a pine tree. In the end of the 20th century the tree was attacked and destroyed twice and currently does have a tree.

The Beehive

This building is located in Wellington and New Zealand's parliament building. It stands as the national symbol of the country. This 10-story building was designed by a Scottish architect in a shape of an actual beehive. Found here are the offices of the Prime Minister and offices of the other cabinet members.

Moeraki Boulders

It found on the Otago coast in the South Island. There perfectly spherical rock formations are not boulders technically but concretions exposed by erosion. According to Maori legend, this is a wreckage from a giant canoe. Visitors who came to see this landmark are allowed to touch and climb on the rocks.

Tane Mahuta

The term means ‘King of Forest’ in Maori and is called to the largest kauri tree in New Zealand. It was estimated to be about 2300 years old and can be found by hiking Waipoua kauri Forest Sanctuary on the North Island.

These are just some of the country’s famous landmarks and tourists attractions. For such a small country, New Zealand is packed with beautiful sights and landmarks.

ENJOY YOUR MEAL! - FOOD IN NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand is world-famous for its culinary delights, but there are certainly some meals, snacks, desserts and even drinks that Kiwi are extremely proud to claim as their own. As a country with around 14,000km of coastline, it comes as no surprise that seafood is especially a favourite among Kiwis with a wealth of shellfish and fish.

1. Hangi

Let's start with the traditional Maori hangi! This involves meat and vegetables slow-cooked in an underground oven. Although it was a common cooking method for thousands of years in New Zealand, today a hangi is saved for more special occasions (mainly because it takes all day to prepare!) Prepare to be overfed but extremely satisfied at hangi meals as part of Maori cultural experiences.

2. Crayfish

Crayfish, also known as lobster, is a Kiwi favourite mostly because it something many fishermen and divers pride on catching themselves. Known to cost NZ$80 for a full crayfish, it's not exactly the most affordable food, but it's definitely worth a try when the opportunity presents itself! Then you'll understand why Kiwis go cray cray for crayfish!

3. Kina

Ok, New Zealanders love their seafood so we'll just hop straight onto another foodie delight from the ocean. Kina is the local name for a type of sea urchin with a hard spiky outer shell and thin fleshy (and edible) insides. It has been a New Zealand delicacy for centuries!

4. Kiwi Burger

You'll either think it's weird or it's genius! What makes a "Kiwi burger" Kiwi is the fact it has beetroot and fried egg along with your standard burger patties and whatever else between two burger buns. Don't knock it until you try it!

5. Jaffas

Rolling onto the sweet stuff, Jaffas are a confectionery favourite among New Zealanders. So much so that they race them! Jaffas are small sugar-coated chocolate balls with an orange flavour to them.

6. Pavlova

Ask an Australian and they will swear that Oz invented the pavlova. Ask a Kiwi and they will tell you different. Either way, pavlova is a much-loved dessert in New Zealand made with meringue, whipped cream and fruit. Try making some yourself for Christmas in New Zealand!.

7. L&P

We'll sneak a beverage on this list just because it's very proudly Kiwi. L&P stands for "Lemon & Paeroa" named after the North Island town it was invented in. It is as common as any soft drink in New Zealand, tasting a bit more lemony and sweet than Sprite.

8. Whitebait fritters

Don't visit the West Coast of the South Island without trying whitebait fritters. It's considered a sin in New Zealand! Whitebait is a collective term for immature fish, usually around one to two inches long. You'll see heaps of keen "whitebaiters" setting up temporary shacks and jetties along the river mouths of the West Coast, catching fish for the local eateries to make whitebait fritters. Think of them as a fishy omelette.

9. Manuka Honey

A highly sought-after honey on the international markets, manuka honey is acclaimed for its medicinal purposes. The more pure the manuka component of the honey is, the healthy (and more expensive) it is. There are plenty of opportunities to try this sweet treat around New Zealand, from supermarkets to dedicated honey shops.

10. Kumara

Kumara isn't just a sweet potato; it is an epic sweet potato. Kumara were brought to New Zealand by the early Maori settlers and still remain a favourite vegetable in New Zealand. The best way to try kumara is in a hangi (see above), but there are heaps of ways you can incorporate kumara into your own cooking in your hostel kitchen.

11. Paua

A final seafood delicacy that we just couldn't ignore, paua is the local name for a large sea snail. You can eat paua in a variety of ways from plain old raw to curries to paua fritters. What's more, paua shells are the national choice of ash tray for all you smokers out there! Alternatively, paua shells are often used in New Zealand jewellery and other decorative souvenirs.

Breakfast

A typical New Zealand breakfast consists of cereal and some toast which is accompanied by a cup of coffee, tea or a glass of juice or milk. Sometimes on the weekend there is time for a cooked breakfast. This cooked breakfast can also be bought/eaten at cafés most mornings.

A typical cooked breakfast has scrambled egg, bacon, cooked tomatoes, mushrooms, hash browns and baked beans.

Lunch

Lunch is normally something simple and not too heavy since dinner is the main meal of the day. It is quite common just to have some sandwiches or hot pies for lunch though some people enjoy the healthier salads and fruit. Sometimes New Zealanders have a "Sunday Lunch" with consists of roast beef (or some other meat) and roast potatoes, pumpkins all slowly cooked in the oven.

Dinner

Dinner is the main meal of the day and is eaten around 6pm. It normally contains meat and cooked vegetables, especially potato.

DER VALENTINSTAG

Am Valentinstag, dem 14. Februar, wechseln Liebende kleine Aufmerksamkeiten, schenken sich vorzugsweise Blumen.

An diesem Tag machen sich Verliebte/Partner kleine Geschenke wie Blumen (hier besonders Rosen), Pralinen oder auch Parfum und Konfekt. In Deutschland hat sich der Valentinstag erst in den letzten Jahrzehnten etabliert. Die typische Dekoration von Geschäften, die auf ihre Waren als mögliche Geschenke zum Valentinstag aufmerksam machen wollen, sind rote Herzen. Diese Herzen prangen dann auch an den Geschenken. Manche tragen einen entsprechenden Schriftzug, wie: Zum Valentinstag, Ich denk an dich, Für Dich, Alles Liebe usw. Auch die Menschen tragen an dem Tag der Verliebten gerne etwas Rotes an.

Obwohl der Valentinstag kein kirchlicher Feiertag ist, bieten katholische Gemeinden an diesem Tag inzwischen spezielle Gottesdienste mit einer Segnung für Liebende an und laden danach zu einem Umtrunk ein. Solche Einladungen spricht z.B. auch die Katholische Landvolkshochschule Volkersberg nach Bin der Rhön aus, gedruckt auf kleinen roten Zetteln. Damit verbunden war 2008 der Hinweis auf den vergünstigen Eintritt in ein nahe gelegenes Erholungsbad an diesem Tag.

Heimlich, still und leise schick ich diese SMS auf Reise.

Sie kommt von Herzen und mit Grüßen, soll dir den Tag versüßen.

REINHOLD MESSNER

Reinhold Messner hat als erster Mensch 14 Achttausender ohne Sauerstoffflasche bestiegen und mehr als 3500 Gipfel erklimmen. Mit 73 Jahren blickt er ohne Furcht auf den Tod – dieser habe für ihn etwas Beruhigendes.

Reinhold Messner, 1944 in Südtirol geboren, bestieg bereits als 5-Jähriger in Begleitung seines Vaters den ersten Dreitausender. Nach seinem Technik-Studium arbeitete er kurze Zeit als Mittelschullehrer, ehe er sich ganz dem Bergsteigen verschrieb. Ein Leben als Grenzgänger folgte.

Seit 1969 unternahm er mehr als hundert Reisen in die Gebirge und Wüsten dieser Erde. Er schrieb vier Dutzend Bücher. Ihm gelangen viele Erstbegehungen, die Besteigung aller 14 Achttausender sowie der "seven summits", die Durchquerung der Antarktis, der Wüsten Gobi und Takla Makan sowie die

Längsdurchquerung Grönlands. Im Gegensatz zu modernen

Abenteurern geht es Reinhold Messner weniger um Rekorde als vielmehr um das Ausgesetztsein in möglichst unberührten Naturlandschaften und das Unterwegssein mit einem Minimum an Ausrüstung. Er folgte dem von Albert Frederick Mummery proklamierten "By fair means" am Nanga Parbat, Fridtjof Nansens "Ruf des Nordens" ins Packeis der Arktis und durchquerte die Antarktis über den Südpol nach einer Idee von Ernest Henry Shackleton. Den Möglichkeiten des Kommunikationszeitalters setzt er sein Unterwegssein als Fußgänger gegenüber und verzichtet auf Bohrhaken, Sauerstoffmasken und Satellitentelefon – ein Anachronismus zwar, der aber der Wildnis ein unerschöpfliches Erfahrungspotential bewahrt.

REINHOLD MESSNER

Reinhold Messner ist vierfacher Vater. Zwischen seinen Reisen lebt Reinhold Messner mit seiner Frau und seinen Kindern in Meran und auf Schloss Juval in Südtirol, wo er Bergbauernhöfe bewirtschaftet, schreibt und museale Anlagen entwickelt. Als Kommentator im Fernsehen sowie als Vortragsredner ist er von Alpinisten, Touristikern, Wirtschaftsführern weltweit begehrt. Im Anschluss an sein Mandat als EU-Abgeordneter (1999-2004) kann sich Reinhold Messner nun seit mehr als 15 Jahren seinem Projekt Messner Mountain Museum (MMM) sowie seiner Stiftung (MMF) widmen, die Bergvölker weltweit unterstützt. Messner erhielt zahlreiche Preise und Ehrungen, u.a. die "Patron's Medal" der "Royal Geographic Society" für seinen Beitrag zum Bergsteigen und für die Berggebiete. Diese Auszeichnung ist eine der höchsten, die das britische Königshaus vergibt.

Zwei Indianer gehen zum Medizinmann und fragen ihn wie der Winter wird. Der wirft ein paar Steine in die Luft und sagt: "Es wird ein kalter Winter. Geht in den Wald und sammelt viel Holz."

Am nächsten Tag kommen wieder einige Indianer und fragen ihn wieder, wie der Winter wird. Er wirft wieder die Steine in die Luft und sagt: "Es wird ein kalter Winter. Geht in den Wald und sammelt viel Holz."

Die nächsten Tage kommen immer wieder Indianer, auch von anderen Stämmen, und fragen ihn wie der Winter wird. Jedesmal wirft er die Steine und sagt: "Es wird ein kalter Winter. Geht in den Wald und sammelt viel Holz."

Schließlich überlegt er sich, ob das auch stimmt, was er da erzählt. Deshalb ruft er beim Wetteramt an und fragt wie der Winter wird. Dort bekommt er zur Antwort: "Es wird ein kalter Winter. Die Indianer sammeln Holz wie die Verrückten."
